CAPs PROGRAM INFORMATION

The 2009 CAPs Showcases will take place at two local theaters. The Northern Virginia Community College's Ernst Center will host the Spring Showcases on May 12-14, 2009 and the CenterStage at Reston Community Center will host the Fall Showcases on October 27-28, 2009. Each Showcase features a different set of artists. The Showcase performance schedules will be mailed to all registered organizations and individuals and posted on our website, www.artsfairfax.org, closer to the event.

Showcases offer representatives from schools, corporations, and civic organizations the opportunity to view live performances and exhibitions by participating artists. Bring your calendars to schedule bookings before and after each day's showcases.

ABOUT CAPs

The Arts Council of Fairfax County's Creative Arts Programs (CAPs) enriches the lives of children and families by bringing high quality arts programs by performing, visual, and literary artists to schools, civic groups, corporations, booking organizations, event firms, and many other presenters. CAPs artists offer a range of experiences, from performances and presentations to workshops and residencies. All CAPs artists are auditioned and screened by an artistic review panel prior to acceptance into the program. Once approved, the artists are evaluated annually in order to remain on the CAPs roster. The Arts Council hosts spring and fall showcases by CAPs artists so that presenters can identify programs for artistic and educational bookings. The Arts Council initiated the CAPs program in 1970 as the Concerts-in-the-Schools project for Fairfax County Public Schools.

ABOUT THE ARTS COUNCIL

The Arts Council of Fairfax County is the recognized voice of the arts in Fairfax County, dedicated to fostering a dynamic and diverse local arts presence and participation. We ensure that artists and the arts thrive by providing vision, leadership, advocacy, funding, education and capacity building.

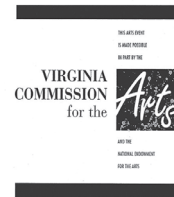

In addition to the CAPs program, the Arts Council also distributes arts grants on behalf of Fairfax County and produces the annual International Children's Festival at Wolf Trap, which includes a field trip program for every fifth grade student in Fairfax County Public Schools.
